To Governor James A. Beaver, Chairman.

Provision having been made by the Commission for the preparation of a full and complete history of the Conemaugh disaster of May 31, 1889, of the rising of the waters in other parts of the State, and of the work of the Commission in the distribution of the large fund placed in their hands, in making this, my report, in addition to rendering to the Commission an account of the moneys which have passed through my hands, I shall, as requested, for the information of the contributors to the Fund, very briefly refer to the various phases of the subject, and make a plain statement of the circumstances and of the work performed in the way of Relief.

When I was called upon to act as the secretary, and to aid in the executive work of the Commission, it was thought best to locate the general office at Harrisburg. Governor Beaver placed at the disposal of the Commission the rooms of the Supreme Court on Capitol Hill, which have been occupied for this work to the present time. Before the opening of the office, all the work connected with the Commission was performed in the Executive Department by the Governor and his personal staff, and through that Department, and in the name of the Governor, all contributions were acknowledged. For a while the clerical work of the office was performed by clerks detailed by the several heads of Departments of the State, and during all this time, in my absence, the office has had the personal supervision of the confidential clerk of the chairman.

DISTRICTS.

Besides the destruction in the neighboring States, the flood had caused large losses in the following counties in Pennsylvania; Bedford, Blair, Cambria, Cameron, Centre, Clearfield, Clinton, Cumberland, Dauphin, Elk, Fulton, Huntingdon, Indiana, Juniata, Lancaster, Lycoming, Mifflin, Northumberland, Perry, Snyder, Tioga, Union, Westmoreland and York, and applications for relief have been received from nearly all of them.

In some of these counties in the eastern part of the state, the loss sustained was very heavy; the cities of Williamsport and Lock Haven, Jersey Shore, Lewistown, Newport, and a part of Harrisburg, being the larger settlements which were almost entirely inundated. In material loss, Williamsport suffered most severely; the city was covered from side to side with water, the business part to a depth of from four to eight feet, and the loss to merchants was heavy and universal. The greatest financial loss was to the lumber interests; saw-mills were washed away; large yards, containing millions of feet of marketable lumber, were swept clean; the ponds were emptied of their logs, and, the boom giving away, the logs collected there for the summer's sawing, were carried down the river, into the bay, and many beyond, to be irrevocably lost. (It may be well to say here, in reply to misstatements on this point, that the lumbermen of this region did not make any claim on the relief fund, no part of it was paid to them, and though heavy losers, they contributed liberally for the relief of others.)

Lock Haven, too, had but few buildings which were not inundated to a depth of from two to eight feet, which was the case also with many towns and villages on the banks of the Susquehanna River. The destruction was great also along some of the smaller waters emptying into the river; comparatively insignificant streams becoming raging torrents, carrying away houses, barns, fences, and live stock, and, in many cases, leaving once fertile farms a barren waste of sand and gravel.

While the aggregate loss was not as great along the Juniata River, yet great damage was done and much suffering was caused in the many villages and to the once fertile fields lying along that stream.

Both rail and telegraph communication were interrupted and the extent of the disaster did not become known for some time. Governor Beaver, went on Saturday, June 1, to Annapolis, Md., on official business and on the afternoon of that day heard of an uprising of the waters at Johnstown involving the death of a considerable number of persons. Nothing further was learned by him until noon of Sunday, when a report of a great calamity reached that city. The telegraph offices were not open, and not until late in the day, when by special orders a wire was placed at his disposal, was the true state of the case known. By special train, the Governor started for Harrisburg, but the track near that city being in places washed away, he did not reach there until Monday morning, when he was brought in by the construction train, which had made the road passable. During this day, learning to its full extent, as then understood and estimated, the character of the calamity in Johnstown, Governor Beaver issued the following proclamation:

COMMONWEALTH OF PENNSYLVANIA,
EXECUTIVE CHAMBER,
HARRISBURG, PA, June 3, 1889.

To the people of the United States:

The Executive of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania has refrained hitherto from making any appeal to the people for their benefactions, in order that he might receive definite and reliable information from the centers of disaster during the late floods, which have been unprecedented in the history of the State or Nation. Communication by wire has been established with Johnstown to-day. The civil authorities are in control, the Adjutant General of the State cooperating with them. Order has been restored and is likely to continue.

Newspaper reports as to the loss of life and property have not been exaggerated. The valley of the Conemaugh, which is peculiar, has been swept from one end to the other as with the besom of destruction. It contained a population of 40,000 to 50,000 people, living for the most part along the banks of a small river, confined within its narrow limits.

The most conservative estimates place the loss of life at 5,000 human beings and of property at $25,000,000. Whole towns have been utterly destroyed, not a vestige remaining. In the more substantial towns the better buildings, to a certain extent, remain, but in a damaged condition. Those who are least able to bear it, have suffered the loss of everything. The most pressing needs, so far as food is concerned, have been supplied. Shoes and clothing of all sorts for men, women and children are greatly needed. Money is also urgently required to remove the débris, bury the dead and care temporarily for widows and orphans, and for the homeless generally. Other localities have suffered to some extent in the same way, but not in the same degree.

Late advices would seem to indicate that there is great loss of life and destruction of property along the west branch of the Susquehanna and in localities from which we can get no definite information. What does come, however, is of the most appalling character, and it is expected that the details will add new horrors to the situation. The responses from within and without the State have been most generous and cheering. North and South, East and West, from the United States and from England, there comes the same hearty, generous response of sympathy and help. The President, Governors of States, Mayors of Cities, individuals and committees, private and municipal corporations seem to vie with each other in their expressions of sympathy and in their contributions of substantial aid.

But gratifying as are these responses, there is no danger of their exceeding the necessities of the situation. A careful organization has been made upon the ground for the distribution of whatever assistance is furnished in kind. The Adjutant General of the State, is there as representative of the State authorities, and is giving personal attention, in connection with the Chief Burgess of Johnstown and a committee of relief, to the distribution of the help which is furnished. Funds contributed in aid of the sufferers can be deposited with Drexel & Co., Philadelphia; Jacob C. Bomberger, banker, Harrisburg; or William R. Thompson & Co., bankers, Pittsburgh. All money contributed will be used carefully and judiciously. Present wants are fairly met. A large force will be employed at once to remove the débris, and bury the dead, so as to avoid disease and epidemic.

The people of the Commonwealth and others whose unselfish generosity is hereby heartily appreciated and acknowledged may be assured that their contributions will be made to bring their benefactions to the immediate and direct relief of those for whose benefit they are intended.

By the Governor :

JAMES A. BEAVER.

CHARLES W. STONE,
Secretary of the Commonwealth.

Knowing that the wants of the citizens of Johnstown were being met by the Pittsburgh Relief Committee, and being advised of the condition of the cities on the Susquehanna and the Juniata, the immediate attention of the Governor was given to their relief. Supplies were purchased in Harrisburg and sent at once to the submerged districts, to reach which, in some cases, it was necessary to carry the food in boats twice across the swollen and dangerous rivers. He also sent, by special messengers, money to be distributed in the localities most seriously affected, and while the sums thus disbursed constitute a part of the money charged to the districts, the recipients are not, as a rule, included in the number reported as having received help from the Commission.

Philadelphia too, as soon as the condition of affairs was learned, gave itself to the active care of this part of the State. In that city there is a permanent relief committee, the members of which naturally gave their attention to this calamity, and by them were sent supplies of all kinds and in large quantities to the several submerged districts. Most active in this work were the gentlemen afterwards selected as members of the Commission, who, with others, gave their personal attention to receiving supplies, and in purchasing and sending food and clothing to these localities, as well as to the Conemaugh valley.

Before the formation of the Commission there had been organized in the larger towns and cities in these counties, local relief committees, and it was deemed best to strengthen these and through them, under instructions from and under the supervision of the Commission, to distribute the moneys appropriated to the several localities. These committees cared not only for the sufferers in their own immediate localities, but, acting with sub-committees from other parts of their districts, it became possible to give intelligent consideration to each claimant as well as to search out the needy, whose diffidence or ignorance of the methods prevented them from putting forward their claims. To these committees were sent supplies and cash by individuals and by local relief committees in other places in addition to that sent them by the Commission, and through them were expended also such sums as were appropriated by the State, under the authority of the State Board of Health, for general sanitary purposes. In some of the places, in addition to the moneys distributed in a general way, specific sums were sent by the Commission to the committees to be held as an "Aid Fund," to be used during the winter in helping those who, by reason of the flood, might require assistance, the aid to be given as largely as possible in the way of supplies. This has proven to be a wise measure and the general sentiment of the committees is that the help thus given has been productive of more good than was possible in the distribution of much larger sums during the summer months.

Harrisburg, Huntingdon, Clearfield, Emporium, and some smaller places, and a number of counties had announced that they would care, by their own subscriptions for the sufferers in their communities, though some of these places also sent contributions to the general fund.

To the examination and verification of claims in places and along streams other than before mentioned, it was intended that the secretary of the Commission should give his personal attention, but his entire time, later being occupied in Johnstown, this work was done through special agents (mainly by Mr. Geo. L. Potter, of Bellefonte, Pa.), who called to their aid prominent persons in each locality, and recommendations were made to him based upon the most intelligent information obtainable. Such recommendations and an occasional meeting with the several committees comprised the whole amount of assistance rendered by the secretary in these districts, though no payments, except in one district, were made before the papers were submitted to him, and the distributions as made were thus the result of joint deliberation.

The gentlemen composing the several committees were representative men in their communities, and they, in all cases, gave to the work intelligent thought, and though they have not succeeded in giving satisfaction to all, yet their work has been well done. It has been recognized, not only by the Commission, who appropriated only $250,000 for the sufferers in the eastern part of the State, but by the people of these districts, that but for the great loss of life and the wholesale destruction of property in the Conemaugh valley which appealed to the sympathy of the world, there would likely have been but little contributed for their help. Individuals in Lycoming county may have suffered loss to an equal degree with individuals in Johnstown, yet in the one case the ordinary avocations of life in the community generally, after an interruption of a few days, were regularly resumed, while in the other there was a general breaking up of everything; in one case the more fortunate were in a position to render assistance in many ways to the few who lost their all, and in the other, in the general ruin, there were few who did not find it necessary to begin anew to lay the foundations of a home and commence the work of rebuilding their fortunes. Payments, therefore, have not been made in these districts with the same liberality as in the Conemaugh valley, which was neither expected by the sufferers, nor intended by the donors.

GENERAL RELIEF IN THE EASTERN PART OF THE STATE.

Applications for relief were made on blanks furnished by the Commission, giving, under oath, the name of the claimant, residence, value of property remaining, amount of loss classified, age, and number and ages of family dependent. These, when returned, were examined, the persons and their properties were visited by the committees or special agents, information was obtained from responsible persons in the neighborhood, and an award was recommended, based on their needs and qualified by the amount of money at the disposal of the committee. As a rule, no payment was made to persons having a remaining property, real or personal, of the value of $2,000, though circumstances sometimes required that exceptions be made. Some of the claims were remarkable as coming from a presumably self-respecting people, who would only accept help when in great necessity. Claims for damage to "vegetables in the cellar," for "damage to garden," for "wetting of carpets," were common, which, in view of the fact that many thousands of families in the State had their homes submerged almost or quite to the second floor and who have not asked for assistance, emphasises the fact that many looked for money only because their neighbors had received help.

The opinion largely prevailed too throughout the State, that the moneys being distributed were a State appropriation for indemnifying the citizens for loss by reason of the flood, and hundreds of applications were received from fairly well-to-do people, who, as taxpayers, urged their right to participate in the distribution. Most of these, the matter being explained, withdrew their claims, though some "did not care whether it was a State fund or a charity fund, they had sustained loss and wanted some of the money".

By reason of the insufficient data obtainable, no attempt has been made to arrive at the total loss by the flood in these parts of the State, no districts having given full statements, and from a number of badly damaged localities no applications for help have been received, and no attempt has been made by the people generally to secure even an approximate estimate of loss.

RENOVO.

A committee consisting of Mr. Thos. A. Roberts, Rev. J. D. Cook, Rev. J. J. Connelly, and Messrs. John Smith, Lewis Putt, George R. McCrea and E. J. Swain, distributed the funds sent to that city. The amount of cash distributed in Renovo was $10,095.00, of which $7036.00 was sent by the Commission, and the recipients numbered 191, who received sums ranging from $5.00 to $352.00.

LOCK HAVEN DISTRICT.

The Lock Haven district, including all of Clinton county except Renovo, was cared for by a committee consisting of Hon. G. W. Mason, Rev. H. R. Bender and Messrs. John F. Beardsley, Wm. H. Brown, Thomas Yardley, R. J. Fleming, F. M. Ross, James Brown, Chas. F. Mann, Hon. J. W. Smith, J. H. Ager and Hiram Myers, who were further assisted by local committees in several parts of the county which had suffered severely. This district, besides large quantities of supplies, received $72,174.17, of which the Commission sent $47,195.00. Six hundred persons received money in sums of from $7.50 to $600.00.

JERSEY SHORE DISTRICT.

The Jersey Shore committee consisted of Messrs. E. D. Trump, P. D. Bricker, H. B. Humes, J. S. Tomb, L. Koester and C. B. Seely, who had the care of that town and the townships in their end of Lycoming county. In this district, much damage was caused along some of the smaller streams as well as in the town of Jersey Shore. To this district was sent $42,801.59 of which the Commission sent $35,524.06, and $7,277.53 was received from other sources, $1,105.00 being subscribed by citizens of Jersey Shore. There were 635 recipients of sums ranging from $5.00 to $750.00.

WILLIAMSPORT DISTRICT.

This district, comprising all of Lycoming county, except the Jersey Shore District, had for a committee, Hon. James S. Foresman, Rev. Eugène A. Garvey, Rev. Wm. H. Graff, Rev. Edw. J. Gray, and Messrs. H. R. Fleming, Elias Deemer, Fletcher Coleman, William Eves, and Franklin Reading. Having a very large territory to care for, and one having suffered most severely, the work of this committee was of a laborious character. On four of the members the active labor devolved, who, laying aside their own occupations, gave their entire time for several months to the work, the other members meeting and advising with them. Under their direction was carried on the work of cleaning streets and cellars, under authority of the State Board of Health, and repairing and rebuilding the dwellings of those not able to care for their own property. They distributed enormous amounts of supplies sent to them, and examined and passed upon, after having made personal investigation, 2,833 claims. The amount expended in the district for relief was $155,911.82, of which the Commission sent cash $110,560.00, and also purchased supplies to the amount of $4,449.20. In addition, the Commission appropriated $5,000.00 to the hospital in Williamsport, for the benefit of the District, a measure which seemed necessary by reason of increased demands on that institution resulting from the flood. There was received in this district from outside sources, $24,492.25, and $20,659.57 were given by the citizens of Williamsport. Payments were made to 2,352 persons in sums ranging from $5.00 to $592.00, and annuities to the amount of $1,650.00.

TiOGA COUNTY.

In Tioga county but little money was paid to individuals, the principal help given being in clearing and rendering habitable the properties of those requiring assistance. The amount expended by the Commission in the county was $1,300.00, under the personal supervision of Hon. H. W. Williams. The State Board of Health also expended a fair amount of money for general sanitary purposes.

PERRY COUNTY DISTRICT.

The district of Perry county had a committee consisting of Messrs. H. H. Bechtel, B. M. Eby, J. H. Irwin, Thos. H. Milligan, W. M. Horting and Alvin Jones. Besides supplies, there was sent to them in cash by the Commission, $7,010.00, and they received from other sources $194.02. One hundred and ten persons were assisted in sums of from $10.00 to $400.00.

JUNIATA COUNTY DISTRICT.

This district was cared for by a committee in Mifflintown, consisting of Messrs. E. E. Berry, E. B. McCrum and F. M. M. Pennel, with sub-committees in smaller places in the county. There was sent to them $3,500, of which $3,000.00 was from the Commission. Payments were made to 70 persons in sums from $5.00 to $225.00.

MIFFLIN COUNTY DISTRICT.

The Mifflin county committee consisted of Messrs. Thos. J. Frew, W. H. Mendenhall, D. E. Robinson, J. M. Goodhart, A. C. Mayes, J. M. Woods, J. C. Brehman, R. C. Elder, S. S. Woods, Samuel Killian Dr. H. C. Walker and C. Stewart Garrett: sub-committees acted with them from the outlying districts. In this district, assistance was largely given in the purchase of provisions and in repairing and rebuilding dwellings, the loss on buildings in Lewistown having been large. To this district was sent, by the Commission, $9,621.77; from other sources they received $8,058.63, of which $3,179.55 was given by the citizens of Lewistown. Payments were made to 241 persons in sums ranging from $5.00 to $537.00.

A summary of the moneys expended in these districts, and distributed by the secretary in other counties in the State, is given in the financial statement, and a list of the individual claimants, with the amount of each loss and the sum of money paid to each, is filed with the papers of the Commission, a proper receipt being filed with each case. The following is a summary of moneys received in the districts outside the Conemaugh valley for general relief, so far as could be learned.

Some of these districts were cut off from the rest of the State by the destruction of the bridges crossing the streams with which they were surrounded, and in all of them the food within their limits was ruined by the water. There was, however, but little suffering, as at once provisions and clothing were sent in abundant quantities from Philadelphia, Harrisburg and other points. In many cases these were donated, but generally they were purchased by the several relief committees with the funds placed in their hands. This too was the case with disinfectants, large quantities of which were sent to the different localities. It is not possible to form a correct estimate of the quantity and value of the supplies thus sent. It has not been possible to secure from the railroad companies a statement of the number of car loads carried by them, and even were such a record at command, there would yet remain a very large unknown quantity, being the contributions of this kind to individuals by friends widely scattered.

DEATHS.

While the terrible destruction of life at Johnstown renders insignificant by comparison the loss of life along the other streams, yet the number of persons drowned in the districts under consideration, is larger than has ever been known in our State by a single inundation, and in some localities, in proportion to the population endangered, the loss was as great as in any part of Johnstown. The following is believed to be a correct list of the drowned in the several counties:

CONTRIBUTIONS.

The contributions of the Nation and of the World, gradually, through individuals and local committees, were concentrated at four principal points: In the hands of Governor Beaver at Harrisburg; at Philadelphia, with the permanent relief committee of that city; at Pittsburgh, with the flood relief committee there, and at New York, with their relief committee. Immediately on the formation of the Commission the "Governor's Fund" was transferred to it, and later the other funds, except such sums as had been sent direct to the several flooded districts or expended by the committees in the way of relief, were transferred to the Commission for distribution. Included in the "Governor's Fund," are sums from many general relief committees, some of them being from the relief committee of Boston, $150,000.00; of Brooklyn, $90,000.00; of Ohio, through Governor Foraker, over $70,000.00; of San Francisco, $50,000.00; of the District of Columbia, over $41,000.00; of Providence, Rhode Island, over $35,000.00; of Newark, New Jersey, nearly $30,000.00; of Syracuse, New York, nearly $15,000.00; from the Legislatures of New Hampshire and Connecticut, $10,000.00 each, and from citizens of Iowa through the State Treasurer, $14,526.49. The "Governor's Fund" was deposited with the banking house of J. C. Bomberger, Harrisburg, Pennsylvania.

On June 3 and 14 the relief committee of New York sent to Governor Beaver moneys to the amount of $100,000.00, which have been carried on the books as part of the New York Fund, and the same committee transferred to the Commission, on June 27, July 11, July 12 and October 7, the further sums of $50,000.00, $250,000.00, $100,000.00, and $16,199.85, which were deposited with the Fourth National Bank of New York City.

On July 15, by formal action, the Pittsburgh Relief Committee gave into the hands of the Commission $400,000.00, and on September 25, the further sum of $160,000.00. These amounts were deposited with the banking house of William R. Thompson & Co., of Pittsburgh.

The Philadelphia Relief Committee, by formal vote, transferred to the Commission on July 11, $500,000, and on October 4, $100,000, which amounts were deposited with the banking house of Drexel & Co., of that city.

These several banking houses had been designated by Governor Beaver and confirmed by the Commission as the depositories of the fund, and the moneys so deposited remained with them until required for the final distribution in the Conemaugh valley.

In addition to these four funds, large sums of money were sent by individuals and by local committees, without passing through the hands of the Commission, to Johnstown, Williamsport and other places, to be distributed by the several local committees of the districts.

The names of contributors, and the amounts of their subscriptions to the "Philadelphia Fund" were published in the Public Ledger of that city ; similar information as to the New York Fund was published in some of the daily papers of the city of New York ; and the Pittsburgh Committee have published, in pamphlet form, the same information as to their fund. In the Appendix to this report are given the amounts received into the "Governor's Fund," and the names of the donors, so far as they were mentioned in the letters accompanying the moneys.

In the Appendix is also given, arranged by States, Cities and Towns, so far as the Commission has information, the amounts of contributions received into the four principal funds, and also those sent directly to local committees in the flooded districts without passing through the hands of the Commission. This latter has been collected as was possible and is not complete—some localities having received assistance which in no way came to the notice of the Commission.

Among the moneys sent to the Governor, were some accompanied by requests that they be appropriated to specific purposes ; this, in all cases, was done, and the recipients were furnished the names of the donors, and were requested to make to them personal acknowledgments.

In addition to the above, merchants in the cities gave assistance to their customers in the valley, by canceling their entire claims in some cases, and by largely reducing them in others ; contributions were sent to individuals, churches, schools, firemen, bands, postoffice employèes, policemen, and by the several trades unions to members of their crafts, a statement of all which it has been impossible to obtain.

The Cambria Iron Company received contributions from the iron-working industry, which have been distributed among their own workmen, and the Pennsylvania Railroad Company was also the recipient of a fund for the help of the sufferers in the employ of that corporation. The many charitable and social organizations of the country also sent special contributions for their fellow members. There was subscribed and distributed by them in addition to supplies, amounts as follows, as was learned from reports from officials of the organizations.

THE COMMISSION.

As before in stated, the unprecedented liberality of the public resulted in there being collected in scattered localities very large sums of money, the distribution of which was left by the donors to the judgment of the committees to whom their money was sent. Appeals were made to these several committees, to each of them at the same time, not only by local committees in the flooded districts, but also by individuals, for assistance, and in giving relief there could be no unity of action. Governor Beaver, too, unwilling to assume the responsibility of alone deciding upon the best use to be made of the large sums which were pouring in upon him in an uninterrupted stream, and having his time occupied in other measures of relief which were surrounded with many difficulties, required assistance, and after consultation with those active in the other general committees, it was decided to form a Commission for the conduct of the entire work. This was done without any assurance that other funds would be transferred to the Commission, but the purpose primarily was to have a number of persons to decide upon a plan for the distribution of what is known as the "Governor's Fund," and, should this meet the approval of other committees, it was thought their funds might eventually pass to the people through the same channel.

The Commission was formed on June 12, and was composed of Hon. Edwin H. Fidler, Messrs. Thomas Dolan, John Y. Huber, Robert C. Ogden and Francis B. Reeves, from the Philadelphia Relief Committee; Messrs. Jas. B. Scott, Reuben Miller and S. S. Marvin, from the Pittsburgh Relief Committee; Hon. H. H. Cummin, of Williamsport, as a representative of the flooded districts in the eastern part of the State, and Mr. John Fulton, of Johnstown, as representing the Conemaugh valley. For reasons satisfactory, Mr. Fulton was not able to give the time necessary for the work, and, in turn, a place on the Commission was urged upon Mr. Jas. McMillen, Col. John P. Linton and Hon. W. Horace Rose, all of Johnstown, but none of them could so arrange their affairs as to enable them to assist in the work—Mr. Rose, too, as was afterwards learned, had been severely injured during the flood and was physically disabled.

Mr. J. C. Bomberger, of Harrisburg, was made treasurer, and Mr. J. B. Kremer, of Carlisle, Pa., was made secretary.

A careful survey of the entire flooded district was made by the members of the Commission after its organization: reports were received from persons specially selected for the work; information was obtained as to the needs and requirements of the several parts of the State from representative men in the several localities; meetings were held with such frequency as seemed necessary; sub-committees were formed for the direction of special features of the distribution, and every phase of the work has received careful consideration; and it may be proper here to say that in the exercise of their duties, the gentlemen of the Commission have given their time without any charge on the fund and have borne their own personal expenses when engaged on the work of the Commission.

On June 27, the Commission, after full deliberation, issued for the public a statement of the principles by which they would be governed in the distribution of the fund, which principles were closely adhered to throughout the work, though the methods from time to time were modified. These were in short:

“That the said fund is in the nature of a charity to the needy, and not as a general indemnity for losses sustained.

“That a distribution per capita would be manifestly unjust, as it would go alike to the rich and poor, and alike to all sufferers, no matter what their needs or the extent of their sufferings.

“That a distribution by percentage on the amount of losses would be manifestly unjust, as it would result in giving the largest sum to the person having lost the most, without regard to the value of the remaining estate of such persons.”

“That this fund cannot be used for the benefit of any private or public corporation.

“That the fund must go only to the most needy sufferers from the flood in accordance with and in the spirit of the trust impressed upon it by the donors.”

Later it was decided that no payment could be made to estates when there were no minor dependants, and, on the recommendation of the Johnstown Board of Inquiry and the Finance Committee, that consideration could not be given for losses of money, book accounts, evidences of indebtedness, or depreciation of stocks and bonds.

As the plans of the Commission became known, the funds from the other general committees were placed in its hands for distribution, and many local committees, in all parts of the country, sent to it the moneys remaining in their hands, many doing so only after full conference and a careful examination into the general plans adopted, and some of them after having sent special committees to the meetings of the Commission for this purpose, and in every case the plans of the Commission have received their hearty endorsement and approval after such investigation.

JOHNSTOWN.

Of the appalling disaster at Johnstown on May 31, 1889, and of its causes, it is not necessary for me to speak, and the condition in which the valley was left, I am not able to describe. Suffice it to say, that it is the universal opinion that the most vivid descriptions, given seemingly in the most exaggerated forms of speech, utterly fail to present to the mind the terrible ruin and the utter desolation realized on a personal examination.

Johnstown, for this purpose, meaning the entire Conemaugh valley, was composed of a number of independent boroughs and villages, in some cases having miles between them, and in others separated only by an imaginary line. Communication between these villages was interrupted by the destruction of bridges and roads, which for some days was a source of much distress to the citizens and the cause of much additional labor to those actively engaged in the work of relief.

When the waters covering the city had so far subsided that it was possible for the citizens to have intercourse with each other, plans were formed for the immediate care of the living and for the speedy burial of the dead. A town meeting was held on Saturday, June 1, and Mr. A. J. Moxham, who had large manufacturing interests in Johnstown, was selected to act as general chairman and manager of all the departments, and committees were appointed on finance, on supplies, on police, on the care of the dead, and on other departments looking to the general care of the community in the emergency. An attempt was made to have the proceedings of this meeting ratified at a joint meeting of the local authorities of all the boroughs, but it was not possible to convene the members and the work was continued under this authority without question.

As in the eastern part of the state, the submerged districts were directly and without delay cared for by Harrisburg and Philadelphia, so this western community received the immediate attention of the city of Pittsburgh. A most efficient relief committee was at once organized in that city, one department of which, "The Johnstown Relief Corps," was placed in charge of Mr. James B. Scott, now a member of the Commission, who, within twenty-four hours of the disaster, started for Johnstown with a corps of volunteers and a train of cars laden with provisions, and having also the fullest powers from the general committee. It was understood that the people were to be cared for, and to his judgment were left the methods, while they would fill all requisitions made on them by him regardless of labor and cost. This assurance was fully met, and even after the work in Johnstown had passed from under their immediate charge, active assistance was rendered those in authority by this committee. Most active and untiring on this committee were other members of the Commission—Mr. Miller in the general management, and Mr. Marvin in the purchasing department, to which they gave not only their names but their personal services day and night.

Too much praise cannot be accorded the volunteer relief corps, which consisted largely of men unused to manual labor, hardships or privations, and who, on the night of June 1, carried the contents of two cars over a rough and dangerous path of nearly a mile that the morning sun might see food provided for the hungry, and who for days and weeks continued in their self-sacrificing labor, undergoing the greatest privation and physical discomfort, and by their intelligent labor bringing order out of chaos.

This relief corps being thus active, and the local committees of Johnstown realizing that the work was of too appalling a character for persons in their condition, each one either bowed with grief over lost kindred or anxiously busy in the care of what remained of their former fortunes, it was decided to give the management of affairs into the hands of the strangers who had hastened to their aid. At a public meeting held in Johnstown, on Tuesday, June 4, the whole conduct of affairs was placed in the hands of Mr. James B. Scott, with authority absolute and unconditional, the resolution conferring the authority referring to him as "dictator," a title which was not accepted by him, and which was immediately changed to "director." At the same meeting, by him, were appointed various committees for carrying on the work, these being composed in many instances of the same persons previously appointed, though it was found that some of those named at the meeting of June 1, failed to respond, having passed away with the rushing waters. During the administration of Mr. Scott large sums of money were expended from the funds sent to the Pittsburgh Relief Committee (over $200,000), not only in the purchase of food and clothing, but in establishing communication between the different parts of the city, in the search for and burial of the dead, in the cremation of the large number of bodies of domestic animals scattered through the valley, and in other measures of relief, there being as many as from six thousand to seven thousand men in their employ, and nearly or quite 30,000 persons who required subsistence and their active work continued until the 12th day of June.

Governor Beaver in the meantime, besides being in constant communication with the general committees in both ends of the State, and with Mr. Scott at Johnstown, was engaged in the work of devising means for giving assistance to the valley through the machinery of the State, and moneys having accumulated rapidly in four main centers, for concentrating the work of charitable relief that, with unity of action, the greatest amount of good might be accomplished. For the latter object the Flood Relief Commission was formed, as mention has before been made.

It was found that the only constitutional method by which the assistance of the State, as such, could be given was through and under the direction of the State Board of Health. The condition of things in the Conemaugh valley, in Williamsport, and other places, was a serious menace to the health of the citizens and hence a public nuisance; the local authorities were not able to abate it, and the responsibility devolved upon the Department of the State created for such purpose. It was therefore decided that the clearing the waterways, and the removal of the obstacles yet remaining in the streets, in so far as it was necessary for the purpose contemplated, should be carried on by the State Board of Health, which, because of their lack of funds, was furnished with means to carry on the work by the Governor, who secured the money by his individual efforts from financial institutions in Philadelphia, and on June 12, Mr. Scott retired from active control, though he, with part of his force, remained some days longer to fully explain the system in vogue to his successors, and the system thus inaugurated by the volunteer corps was continued during the whole progress of the work, modified only to meet changed conditions.

Adjutant General Hastings, being in the immediate vicinity of Johnstown at the time of its destruction, hastened there, and his connection with the work is so well known that no extended reference to it is required. In the organization of the committees on June 4, by Mr. Scott, he was made chief of the "Department of Public Safety, combining military, and local and special police," and, in addition, he was the special representative of the Governor in the valley. As Adjutant General of the State, in so far as military operations were concerned, and as the representative of the Governor in carrying out the plans and purposes of the State Board of Health, he, on June 12, assumed full control and formal charge of all operations, subject only to the executive officers of the State Board of Health.

Of the work of the State, it need only be said that in a marvelously short time, under the general charge of Colonel H. T. Douglas, chief engineer, and under the personal direction of Major Wm. H. Phillips, the clearing away of the mass of debris above the "Stone Bridge" was accomplished, and that the further removal of injurious matter continued under General Hastings, and later under Captain Geo. C. Hamilton, until October 12, when the State Board of Health formally declared the nuisance abated.

General Hastings, in addition to the duties mentioned above, assumed a general charge of the relief work of the Commission so far as the immediate wants of the people in the valley were concerned, and having summoned all the division and regimental quartermaster and commissary officers of the National Guard, the various storehouses were placed in their charge, and the system of supplying the people with food and clothing was continued as before, modified as occasion required. He also continued under proper officers, the various departments which had come into being; the work connected with transportation, erection of buildings, storage houses, purchasing of coffins, etc., by the Quarter-master General's Department; the guarding of the property and the preservation of order, under the Department of Public Safety; the care of the sick and injured, and the proper burial of the dead, under the Medical Department; securing a record of the dead, means for their identification and the replying to the thousands of inquiries coming from all parts of the world by the Bureau of Information; and the care of property found, and for its return to the rightful owners, by the Department of Valuables; these constituted the principal committees, and all were administered with intelligent care.

The several officers, being on military duty, were on the State rolls, but the employés, and all bills contracted for supplies were paid from the fund of the Commission. The work of the Commission was continued by General Hastings alone until July 2, and in connection with Judge Cummin until July 8, when the management passed solely into the hands of the Commission.

At a meeting of the Commission on June 27, Judge H. H. Cummin, a member of the Commission, at the unanimous request of the members, had agreed to go to Johnstown and remain there as the executive officer of the Commission. Proper blanks for the prosecution of the work of distribution were prepared, and he began his labors there on July 2. He threw into the work all his powers of body and mind, but his labors were but fairly under way when he was stricken down by a sickness which resulted in his death, on August 11. The seeds of the disease had evidently been in his system; he had, before going to Johnstown, been most active in organizing committees and in distributing relief to the suffering in his own city, and the added labor, the incessant worry and the anxious thought connected with starting properly the work in hand without doubt had much to do with the rapid progress of his disease. Of his character as a man, and of his noble qualities of mind and heart, it is not now in place to speak; proper tributes to his memory were made by the Commission and by the finance committee of Johnstown, which have become part of the records.

At a meeting of the Commission held on July 31, Judge Cummin being then very ill, the secretary of the Commission was requested to go to Johnstown to assist in his work, and later, on the death of Judge Cummin, he was asked to remain there as the representative and executive officer of the Commission. Considerations of many kinds urged against adding this labor to that already assumed, but, realizing that the work, fairly started, could with difficulty be carried on by one who had not been in touch with it from the beginning, the consent of the company with which he is connected being obtained, he resumed the labor and continued in it until its completion.

COMMISSARY DEPARTMENT.

The flood absolutely destroyed all food supplies in the Valley; there were no stores for many miles around; railroad communication was cut off in every direction and hunger was an immediate reality. The situation was realized by neighboring towns and cities, and at once, by wagons and by cars, as early as Saturday afternoon, June 1st, from Pittsburgh, provisions were sent to supply the want. With remarkable zeal the Pennsylvania Railroad Company pushed forward the work of rebuilding a part of their road west of Johnstown which had been entirely washed away, and by Sunday morning, June 2d, at seven o'clock, Mr. Scott had at his disposal a track from Pittsburgh to the stone bridge. By Monday morning the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company had repaired the breaks on their line and their cars ran into Johnstown proper. In addition to the purchases made by the committees in Pittsburgh and Philadelphia, immense quantities of provisions were donated and sent forward by full trains from all parts of the country so that, there was no time after Saturday night, the day after the flood, when there was the slightest reason to fear that there would be suffering for want of food, and if any went hungry it was because they chose to do so. Food was not equally easy of access to the people of all parts of the valley, by reason of the want of proper means of communication, but it was there in full abundance.

As soon as was possible an orderly system was effected. Main storage depots were established at convenient points on the railroads, and from these supplies were sent to the distributing stations, located, finally to the number of eighteen, in different parts of the valley. From these latter daily reports were received of the number requiring assistance and the kind of supplies needed, thus securing a sure and economical method of distribution. The valley was divided into precincts, the people were properly enrolled and furnished with supply cards available only at the station nearest to them, and, provision for the day being received, the cards were in so far cancelled, thus preventing duplication. In this work Mr. Scott relied not only on the volunteer corps, but he received most valuable assistance from citizens of Johnstown, some of whom continued active in the commissary work until the depots were finally closed.

It was necessary to furnish food not only to the inhabitants of the valley, but volunteer and employed workmen were present in large numbers and their wants could be supplied only from these stores. It is estimated that the largest number of persons who received food from the commissary on one day was about 30,000; this number was gradually reduced until July 2, when the number on the roll was 10,144; by July 8 the number was reduced to 5880, and by July 15, to 2,583. Money, to a certain extent, having now been distributed, on July 20 all persons were dropped from the rolls except widows, orphan children, working girls who had not yet secured employment, and the aged and the sick. The distribution of money being continued, the rolls were steadily decreased until October 5, when there remained on the list but 464 persons. On that day these were each given supplies for ten days, and the last commissary depot was closed.

CLOTHING.

Not only was it necessary to supply food, but a large part of the population had lost all their clothing except what was on their bodies, and this, after days and nights in the mud and water, had become practically worthless. In addition to the large purchases of wearing apparel by the Pittsburgh, Philadelphia, and other relief committees, very large contributions were made by citizens in all parts of the country of both new and partly worn articles of clothing. Depots were opened for distribution, and these were managed with much judgment but the distribution was attended with many difficulties and the result was not as satisfactory as was desirable. However, the supply was unlimited and it was given out without stint, and of clothing, as well as of food, it can safely be said that the poor of that city, or of any other city, have never been so abundantly supplied.

On August 17, these depots were closed, the remaining articles being sorted and packed away for distribution on the approach of cold weather, and in October, rather than reorganize a force for their distribution, they were placed in the ware-house of the Red Cross Association, Miss Barton having consented to hand them out to the people. A remaining large supply, which had been stored in Philadelphia, was later sent for distribution to the "Union Benevolent Society" and to the "Children's Aid Society" of Johnstown.

Of the quantity and value of supplies sent into the valley it is not safe to hazard an opinion, the estimates of persons actively engaged in the work differing widely. Colonel J. L. Spangler, assistant commissary general, in his official report, while saying that no record was kept at the time, estimates the value of supplies of all kinds distributed between June 1 and July 2 at $1,200,000, while others have estimated that it would not exceed $500,000.00. Besides the articles purchased by the different committees, contributions from all parts of the country were received, in some cases of full car loads from single individuals, and of great variety. Besides food and clothing there was received lumber and building material, axes, tools, household furniture and the like, of the value of which at the time no estimate was made. In bulk there was carried to Johnstown, by the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company, 408 car loads, of which 140 were from Pittsburgh, and by the Pennsylvania Railroad Company 6,035,204 pounds, the equivalent of 500 full car loads, though it is estimated that, the character of the goods considered, there were about 1,000 car loads, and this in addition to supplies carried by the Express Companies.

The following is a statement of expenditures by the permanent Relief Committee of Philadelphia and by the Pittsburg Relief Committee, these being the only committees from whom data has been received.

SHELTER.

The next most pressing need of the people, after food and clothing, was shelter. With a hospitality of a degree only possible in a great calamity, the houses left standing were thrown open to all, the only question of restriction being that of capacity. Apart from the discomfort this caused, it was objectionable from a sanitary view, and other expedients were necessary. Governor Foraker, of Ohio, at once sent a large number of tents, which, with others sent from the Pennsylvania State Arsenal at Harrisburg, were placed at the disposal of the people. This means of shelter, however, was not popular, and the tents were used more by strangers who were present in the different forms of the work of relief than by the citizens, and a more substantial kind of shelter became a necessity. Owing to the condition of the valley, it was not possible to erect permanent buildings generally; the town lots were covered with a heavy deposit of earth and mud, containing both animal and vegetable matter, which would eventually be removed, and over this an enormous accumulation of débris, and it was possible only to erect temporary structures which could be placed on the hillsides and on properties which had not been directly within the limits of the waters.

On the first visit of the Commission to Johnstown, and before it was realized that the contributions would reach an amount more than sufficient to meet the most immediate wants of the sufferers, at a meeting at which were present a number of leading citizens of the valley, a form of temporary building, largely in use in some parts of the country, was described by a member of the Relief Committee of Chicago, which, it was thought, would answer the purpose, and it was urged that the Commission provide large numbers of them. These buildings, known as "Oklohomias," were of one room, ten by twenty feet in size, and were made in sections easily put together. Another style of building, known as the "ready-made house," was also presented, which was sixteen by twenty-four feet in size, and, by a partition divided into two rooms. It was claimed by the builders that these buildings were always in stock to a considerable number, and that they could be furnished as rapidly as they could be located and erected. Of the former one hundred were purchased by the Chicago Relief Committee, from the funds in their hands, and, on the 21st of June, the Commission contracted with the builders for one hundred of the same and one hundred of the "ready-made houses." This whole number was not ready to be sent, but this was not entirely a cause of delay, as it was found that much labor was required in their erection, and they came forward about as fast as they could be located and erected with the facilities at hand. These buildings did not meet the expectations of the Commission or of the people, and plans were prepared for a four-roomed, two-story house, sixteen by twenty-four feet in size, which, while not finished for permanent occupancy, could easily be made so, or be used as an addition to a more pretentious building. These were known as the "Hughes houses".

On July 3 a contract was made with the firm of Hoover, Hughes & Co., for the erection of two hundred of these houses, and later for two hundred more. This firm was perhaps better prepared for this work than any other builders in the State, having their own saw-mills, lumber yards and planing mills, were largely in the business of erecting buildings, and, besides this, were on the spot with a large force of men. At the time of making the first contract with them, bids were not asked from other builders, time being an important element, but before making the second contract, through the papers of Johnstown, bids for the work were asked, but they had no competitors. The Commission made it a condition, heartily responded to by the firm, that in the employment of laborers citizens of Johnstown should have preference over all others; the demand for labor, however, was greater than the supply, and the local builders, having more than they could do on private work, it was imperative that much the largest part of the work should be done by men from a distance.

As these buildings were paid for from the fund of the Commission, as their cost represented in many cases more than the actual loss of the recipients, and as all the sufferers could not receive assistance in this form, a price was fixed on them, considerably less than their actual cost, and this price is included in the total amount charged as having been received from the fund by those who chose to accept relief in this way, the prices being:

For one "Oklohoma".....	$75 00
For two "Oklohoma".....	150 00
For one "Ready Made House" .....	175 00
For one "Ready Made House" and one "Oklohoma",	250 00
For one "Hughes House", .....	260 00

A committee, under the direction of the Finance Committee of Johnstown, was appointed, who received all applications for these buildings, and awarded them in accordance with the merits and necessities of each case, and, to a great extent, regardless of the amount of loss which had been sustained by the applicant. The buildings were erected on orders from this committee, in locations approved by them and by the State Board of Health, and a competent person, employed by them, gave his entire time in seeing that the buildings were located as ordered and that they were erected in accordance with the specifications.

A large part of the works of the Cambria Iron Company was not injured by the flood, and that company commencing at once the erection of buildings to take the place of those carried away—this, in connection with the natural advantages of the locality and the large interests in property there of other character—the continuance of the city was assured and it was early thought wise to take such steps as would open the avenues of trade and assist the people to a position of self-support.

Merchants in the cities were ready to furnish, in many cases, on easy terms, stocks of goods, but there was a lack of store rooms, and also, for sanitary reasons, of places to locate them. Early in June the proper officials gave permission for the erection on a public square of the city of temporary buildings, which could remain there for eighteen months. A contract was made by the Commission and buildings were erected which accommodated forty-two stores on the first floors and with offices above, which, as rapidly as they were completed, were occupied, and the wheels of general business were set in motion. These buildings were formally given over by the Commission to the Finance Committee of Johnstown and accepted by them. To the erection of these buildings, from the fund of the Commission, there was considerable objection made by persons prominent in the work of relief, but the wisdom of this action is now generally admitted. #### FURNITURE.

Before the stores of the city had generally been opened and before any money had been distributed, to meet a pressing want, contracts were made by the Commission for large quantities of furniture and such articles as are necessary for housekeeping. It was intended to distribute these to beneficiaries in full outfits, and, as in the case of the houses, to include their actual cost in the amount charged as having been received by those who accepted assistance of this kind. A depot was established and many full outfits were sent out, but this project did not prove a complete success. It was not deemed wise to purchase with money from the fund of the Commission and stock a warehouse with different qualities of furnishings, or even to provide any but the plainest, such as would meet the necessities of people who had nothing, and there was no room to gratify personal tastes. The stores being reopened, the merchants complained, and with some reason, that they were subjected to unfair competition, and requisitions being continually made for parts of outfits and single pieces, without having the machinery for keeping up a continued supply, there was soon a lack of some articles and a superabundance of others. The expense of care and distribution becoming out of proportion to the value of the goods, the depot was closed on August 1, and the articles remaining were given into the hands of Miss Barton, who distributed them in connection with her own supplies of like character.

TRANSPORTATION.

Another measure of relief, which was much appreciated and which, to a large extent, relieved the strain on the dwelling houses remaining, consisted in carrying free, to points no matter how remote, persons who could find with friends the needed rest and care which was not possible for them in Johnstown. Private generosity was exercised also in this direction, and, at the expense of individuals, of associations, and of relief committees, many women and children were carried to seaside resorts and kept for weeks, where, relieved of the sights and surroundings of their stricken city, they were better able to recover from the shock to which they had been subjected.

The Pennsylvania Railroad Company, and its western organization, the Pennsylvania Company, and the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company were magnificent in the help extended by them. The latter road had suffered to an extent by the flood, and the loss sustained by the former was a large percentage of the total destruction, and though, in the reconstruction of their road and in their efforts to resume their interrupted business, their resources were taxed to the utmost, yet they freely, willingly and to their own disadvantage, offered every facility to those engaged in the work of relief, and no wiser counsellors or more willing workers were found than the officials of these roads; and this is true also of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, the Philadelphia and Reading Railroad Company and other companies in the eastern part of the state.

For a while all persons who wished to leave Johnstown were carried by these roads without charge, passes issued being accepted both by them and by other roads at their terminal connections; and this same liberality was shown as to freight, all "relief supplies," from all parts of the country being carried to the several flooded regions without expense. When the work became systematized, this was considered an undue charge upon the roads and, for the protection of shippers too, by agreement goods were forwarded under bills of lading at the regular charges, and passengers were carried on orders issued by committees having in charge this service, at a reduction of one-third from regular rates, and payment was made by the Commission on the return of these orders.

The same liberality was extended by the Express Companies and by the Western Union Telegraph Company, the latter having given the use of its wires on "flood business," during much of the time, without charge to the members of the Commission.

AID SOCIETIES.

There existed in Johnstown a branch of the "Childen's Aid Society." Being assisted from outside the members, many of whom were heavy losers and had been personally subjected to the horrors of the waters, gave their personal daily attention to the care of those indicated by their title. In addition to contributions sent to them direct, there was sent them quantities of supplies from the stock sent to the Philadelphia committee, and the sum of $500.00 was sent them by the Commission for the continuance of their work.

A very few days after the disaster, Miss Clara Barton, President of the American National Red Cross Association, with a corps of assistants, went to Johnstown and entered on the work intended by the association. For a while quartered in tents, she soon erected warehouses and offices, and, until October 30, she continued actively engaged in the distribution of supplies. She also had erected, in different localities, large boarding houses which were well patronized, and were indeed a necessity until time had allowed the re-opening of the remaining, but damaged houses, of the city. To the work of this association it is not necessary to more than refer as it was long-continued, and the details will probably be given in extended form by the society.

Mrs. F. S. Jerome, president of the Yellow Cross National Association was present during the entire summer, and giving her attention chiefly to the care of the sick and delicate children of the valley, her ministrations will long be remembered.

When Miss Barton was about to discontinue her work, there was organized among the citizens the "Union Benevolent Association of the Conemaugh Valley," with the view of caring, during the winter, for those who might require assistance. To this society, Miss Barton transferred the buildings which had been occupied by her as warerooms and offices, and the supplies remaining on hand, and also the infirmary buildings consisting in part of the "Oklohomas" which had been loaned by the Commission for the purpose. The Commission assisted in the continuance of this society by paying the rental of the ground on which the buildings stand, by sending to them all the supplies which remained of those which had been stored in Philadelphia and by sending them in cash the sum of fifteen hundred dollars. This society is well managed and is accomplishing much good.

THE CARE OF THE SICK AND INJURED.

The sanitary condition of the valley was such that great fears of an epidemic were entertained. The labor and care of properly disinfecting the district, of making house to house visitations, of informing the people as to the dangers and of the means that could be used as preventives, for the supplying of proper conveniences and enforcing proper restrictions, were undertaken directly by the officers of the State Board of Health, and with such intelligent skill was their work conducted that both the sick, as to malarial diseases, and the death rate of the valley during the summer, were but little, if any, increased.

During the progress of the flood many persons were bruised and injured who required surgical attention, and large numbers of persons, by reason of fright, exposure and nervous shock, needed medical treatment, and for these a hospital service was at an early day established. Hospitals were improvised, under the care of local and visiting physicians, who also visited and cared for patients at their places of abode.

The Philadelphia branch of the "Red Cross Society" sent out a corps of physicians who established and conducted a hospital at their own expense until the late Autumn, when it was transferred to the proper officials in Johnstown, and the Permanent Relief Association of Philadelphia appropriated the sum of ten thousand dollars to provide for its future continuance under the charge of the local physicians, (which sum was thought to be sufficient for its maintenance until the Memorial Hospital, to be erected by the Commission could be completed), under whose care it has been and continues to be a most useful measure of relief.

The Commission, recognizing the fact that this character of relief will be a necessity for a long time to come, set apart the sum of forty thousand dollars for the erection and equipment of a hospital for the district, and a Committee of its members is now engaged on this work. It is intended also, that this shall be of a memorial character, commemorating the wonderful generosity not only of our own Nation but of the World.

BURIAL OF THE DEAD.

Both for sanitary and humanitarian reasons, of equal importance with providing for the wants of the living, was the speedy and proper burial of the dead. This at first was difficult, owing to want of implements, conveniences and material, and to the large number of bodies requiring attention. At the first citizens' meeting, on June 1, a committee consisting of Rev. D. J. Beale, D. D., and Rev. H. L. Chapman, D. D., was placed in charge of this work, who were continued under Mr Scott and General Hastings, and the service performed, the circumstances considered, was of a most satisfactory character. As supplies and assistance could be obtained, the bodies were embalmed, were properly robed and placed in coffins, a large supply of which reached Johnstown on Monday, June 2. Opportunity was given for identification, but from the number of morgues, of burial places, and the general difficulties connected with the work of burial, it was inevitable that some confusion of numbers should occur—a matter of most serious regret to all connected with the work. Unfortunately too, bodies were recognized and buried under the names of persons who afterwards were found to be living, and when it was too late for a reëxamination, and the correction of such a mistake was almost impossible. In many cases, articles of clothing, jewelry, valuables, papers, etc., properly numbered as of the number of the body, were used to advantage later as a means of identification.

Temporary cemeteries were located at convenient places and many bodies were interred in the regular cemeteries of the valley, and it may be gratifying to many to know that, though it has been otherwise reported, this work was conducted with great care; the bodies were not thinly covered with earth, subject to the ravages of animals, but were buried to a safe depth. The burial grounds were enclosed and properly guarded, and later, when the bodies were all raised for reburial, it was found that no one of them had been molested.

The bodies which were carried down the river were recovered and cared for by persons employed by the State Board of Health, who patrolled and thoroughly examined the stream as far as was necessary. These bodies were given into the care of local undertakers, and, better facilities being present, by them embalmed, decently robed, placed in caskets and buried in grounds furnished by the county officials. In some cases, photographs were taken of the bodies, and it is to be regretted that this means of possible identification had not been generally adopted as far as it was practicable.

The work connected with the care of the dead was practically finished when the Commission assumed charge, though the expenses connected with it were paid from the funds of the Commission, it being felt that this most sacred use of the offerings of the people would receive the fullest approval of the contributors.

REBURIAL OF DEAD AT "GRAND VIEW."

From a conversation with Mr. Herman Baumer, of Johnstown, as to the best means of identifying as many as possible of the large number of unknown bodies, originated the idea of removing from their scattered resting places all the bodies, and interring them at one place. Having carefully considered all the details, the matter was referred to the Commission, and their secretary was given authority to carry on the work to completion. From the cemetery company of "Grand View" was secured a beautiful plot of ground, of about 22,000 square feet, high up above the ruined city, for which was paid only enough to warrant the perpetual care of the ground, the deed being held by the mayor of Johnstown, as trustee.

A committee was formed consisting of men heartily interested in the work, one of the members being Mr. J. M. Shumaker, who, having spent much time in a search for the body of his wife, seeing in this plan a prospect of success, gave to it his undivided time and attention, and to him the Commission is largely indebted for the very satisfactory manner in which the work was carried out, and, although thirty-six bodies were identified during the progress of the work, it is to be regretted that his hopes were not realized and he is yet ignorant of the resting place of his wife.

During the removal of the bodies, notice having been given through the daily papers, very large numbers of persons were present; careful examination of each body was made, articles of clothing were compared with the records, and a new description of those not identified was recorded and numbered in accordance with the grave on "Grand View." A statement of the number of bodies raised, of those identified, and of those reinterred from the different cemeteries, is given later in the Summary of the Dead.

Of this committee, the secretary of the Commission is chairman, and it is their purpose, from the money furnished them by the Commission, to continue the burial of bodies in the plot as they may be found, to place a marble marker at the head of each grave, and eventually, if funds should be available, to erect a suitable monument to the "Unknown Dead."

It is gratifying to know that, however much difference of opinion may have been expressed in every other department of the work, no one, as yet, has objected to the expenditure of the money required for this purpose.

GENERAL RELIEF.

In addition to and growing out of the foregoing departments, was much to which only general reference need be made. Buildings for the use of the commissary were erected, both receiving sheds, storage depots, and distributing buildings; also buildings for the furniture and clothing depots, for the morgues, in part, and to meet other wants of the people. Fire engines were borrowed from Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, and Allegheny, and some of them were kept in service until the city was provided with apparatus and the local companies were reorganized, the expense being in part borne by the Commission, but mainly by the Johnstown Finance Committee, and, until the necessity gradually passed away, there were committees having particular care of special departments of the general work, appointed as occasion required, and all having in view the general good.

Teams in large numbers were required for carrying supplies to the different parts of the valley; the number of employès in the different departments—commissary, medical, police, buildings and others—from the nature of the case, as before explained, was necessarily large, and the pay-rolls for these form a considerable item in the total amount expended. In a well established business, the different departments being the result of normal growth and having employès trained for their several positions, an equal amount of work could be done with less expense, but all circumstances considered, no intelligent criticism is warranted on this point.

The wages paid in all the departments were larger than could have been commanded in a regular business, but, apart from the necessities of the case, this was not a serious matter, the difference not being large, and the employès, as far as was possible, having been selected from sufferers by the flood. In the whole conduct of the work, reductions in the working force were made as rapidly as was possible, the sacredness of the trust being continually in mind.

THE DROWNED.

Statements heretofore made by the Commission, and published by others, as to the number of persons drowned in the Conemaugh valley are not correct, even though they were copied from the records, as, even at this time, changes are being made with added information. Largely exaggerated as were the reports at the time of the loss of life, they were excusable, for, to persons who were acquainted with the location of the thickly settled part of the valley, the great wonder is that so many escaped. The location being unfavorable for easy escape from the waters let loose from the dam above, the difficulty was greatly increased by reason of a general inundation which existed prior to the breaking of the dam. Nearly the whole city was already submerged to a depth of from two feet to ten feet, and even had timely warning been given of the impending danger, the result would have been but little changed, as escape through the streets was practically, by reason of the high water, cut off. The most careful investigation, continued to the present time, shows the number to have been 2,142. That is, it is known that persons to this number were in Johnstown at the time of the flood who have not been heard of since as being alive. Some of these may be living and may yet be discovered, but the number given above is not likely to be much reduced. It is probable, too, that the number lost is slightly more than this, but as the additional number could only be composed of persons temporarily in the city, and who had not formed acquaintances or become so identified with a neighborhood as to be missed, it necessarily cannot be large. Reduced as is this number from the original estimates, it is yet the record of a frightful loss of human life and one that will go down in history as one of the greatest calamities happening to the English speaking people. No one fact presents to the mind so clear a conception of the horrors of the disaster as that ninety-nine families, numbering from two to ten members each, were entirely washed away.

The bodies of all will never be recovered; besides those burned in the terrible conflagration above the "stone bridge," many are buried deep under the sands of the stream, and others have been carried by the current far down into the Father of Waters to be buffeted and finally wasted away. Bodies supposed to have been washed from Johnstown were taken from the Ohio River as far down as Cincinnati, but the finding of bodies in that river is not an unusual occurrence and there was nothing in these cases to connect them with this catastrophe. The greatest distance to which a body is known to have been carried was Steubenville, Ohio, where a body was taken from the river, identified, and returned to the family for burial.

Of "flood widows" there are 124. Of these, seventeen were non-resident, one of them being in Austria, one in Prussia, one in Hungary, two in England, six in different parts of Pennsylvania, one in Maryland, and of those whose husbands were among the lost of the passengers of the "Day Express," three are in points in Pennsylvania, one in Maryland and one in New Jersey. Two of the widows have since re-married, one of them before the time of making distribution, and five widowers, of whom there were 198, have taken to themselves wives.

The orphans and half orphans reach the number of 565. While both the Commission and the Children's Aid Society of Johnstown, received hundreds of letters from persons willing to adopt such children but one case has been reported of actual adoption.

In the summary following are given the totals, reached after the fullest investigation, and which are substantially correct, and also a statement of the bodies reinterred in the plot of the Commission in Grand View Cemetery.

DISTRIBUTION OF CASH.

For the several departments of relief, before referred to, nothing was required but the application of good business principles and methods, so far as was possible under the circumstances, but it soon became apparent, even to those who most strongly objected to giving relief except in the way of providing the different articles necessary until self-support became possible, that a cash distribution would be required. This not only because of the very large sums of money which were accumulating, but because also of the necessities of the case to which reference has been made, viz: that a continued meeting of the wants of the people as to food, clothing and shelter, after the avenues of trade were opened and opportunity was given to all to earn their living, tended to pauperizing the community, interfered with the regular conduct of the business of the place, and, more than all, that it benefited most those, who perhaps least felt the effects of the general destruction.

How to make the distribution was a problem to which was brought more anxious thought and careful deliberation than was required in all the other work. Precedents were not available as a guide. No such charity sum had ever before been distributed in cash, and in the meagre reports of smaller distributions there was shown so much dissatisfaction, that they could hardly be said to have been a success. The opinions of wise men differed widely; without having considered the matter from all sides, it was "hoped that the Commission were not correctly reported in that they proposed to give consideration to any but the poor," and "had the business men of the country known that merchants were not to be relieved and given a fresh start, the contributions of the business men would have been distributed by themselves," and "the calamity was a common one, all were affected by it and all should be assisted to varying degrees;" such and other opinions were heard from all sides and from persons whose judgment was entitled to consideration. All agreed that the money should be paid out speedily; had the amount to be distributed been only large enough to have given to each sufferer sufficient ready money to meet pressing wants, it doubtless should have been paid out as soon as a list of the sufferers could have been secured, but as the appropriation meant to the recipient, in some cases, a recouping of his whole loss, and in others a large but varying proportion, other considerations became of equal importance with that of haste. Much complaint was made by some people of Johnstown and by some correspondents to the public press, of the long time consumed in distributing the moneys sent to the Commission, but it was without a full knowledge of the difficulty of securing even a list of all the sufferers, or appreciation of the amount of labor involved in the work; and it is worthy of remark that several funds, small as compared with the Commission fund, but large as to the people, were not distributed until after the distribution of the fund of the Commission was completed, and one fund, subscribed at the same time that the moneys of the Commission were received is still (May 29) in the hands of a committee for distribution. The aim of the Commission, and of the several committees in charge of the fund, has been to do the work well and as quickly as possible, but not to sacrifice thoroughness for haste.

Various plans were proposed to the Commission, all based on information more or less accurate, and all providing for giving a specific sum to each of certain persons, by classes, regardless of loss and based only on their necessities, and a percentage on the property loss of others, arranged also by classes. This general system of classification was adopted and kept in view all through the work, but it was found that there were so many cases in each class that required exceptional consideration, that it finally became to a large extent an adjustment in each case, based upon many and important considerations. The opinions of the members of the Commission, and of those active in the work, were modified by experience, and while the general principles were maintained, the details were changed several times, but as each change was to the advantage of the more helpless part of the community, criticism of the delay occasioned was disarmed.

At the citizen's meeting held on June 1, a Finance Committee was appointed to take charge of moneys sent direct to Johnstown. Some of the persons named on the committee having been drowned, a new committee was appointed on June 4, by Mr. Scott, consisting of the surviving members of the former committee with several new members, and this committee has continued to this time as the chief committee on the work of relief in the Conemaugh valley. It is composed of Mr. James McMillen, Cyrus Elder, Esq., Mr. A. J. Moxham, Mr. George T. Swank, Mr. W. C. Lewis and Mr. John D. Roberts. They are all representative men, who enjoy the confidence of the community, and who have given their untiring attention to the wants of the people.

PER CAPITA DISTRIBUTION.

To this Finance Committee moneys were sent from all parts of the country, and from this fund was made the first cash distribution. The plan submitted to the citizens at a public meeting and approved by them, contemplated paying to each person in the valley, who had in any way suffered loss by the flood, and without regard to the amount of loss or to the necessities of the recipients, the sum of ten dollars, the payment to be made by checks and through the heads of families.

This payment was made on July 8, before which time there was but small opportunity to use money, and it certainly proved to be a wise measure of relief Payments under this per capita distribution, or "head money" as it came to be called, and by which name it will be referred to, in many cases amounted to as much or more than had been lost, and the recipients making no further applications for assistance, the records of the Commission do not show the number of persons to whom this distribution was made. From the applications made for further relief, there is knowledge, however, of 4,616 heads of families and persons not dependent on others, who participated in the distribution and who received $148,890.00. The different amounts received are included in total sums with which the claimants are charged as having received the from the contribution of the people.

At about the same time, a distribution of some $5,200 was made by the mayor of the city of St. Louis in person, such being the request of the donors of his fund, and a further distribution of $16,929.30 by representatives of the New York "World", it being a fund collected by that paper. These sums, as well as the moneys received by the people from the various orders and organizations of the country, were not enquired into nor noted in any way, but a fund of $5,000.00, sent from the funds in the hands of the relief committee of Pittsburgh, and distributed by a local committee among the sufferers in the village of South Fork, is so noted, and the amounts received from it by individuals are included in the records of the Commission.

FIRST DISTRIBUTION BY THE COMMISSION.

For the purpose of securing a list of the sufferers and a knowledge of their several losses, under the direct charge of the Johnstown Finance Committee, a "Board of Inquiry" was established. This consisted of Hon. John Hannan, John H. Brown, Esq., Mr. Samuel Masters, Captain H. H. Kuhn, Rev. E. W. Troutwine and Mr. Tom. L. Johnson, of Cleveland, Ohio, but press of business on the part of Mr. Johnson, the care of a large parish on the part of Rev. Troutwine, and the active duties of the commissary over which Captain Kuhn had been placed, required these gentlemen to withdraw from the board, and the work devolved upon the other three members, who continued it to the end, and, having had almost daily consultations with them during the whole progress of the work, I take this opportunity of bearing witness to the uniform honesty of purpose, and endeavor to act justly, which characterized these gentlemen, occupying as they did, a position the most trying which could be assumed by the citizens of a community.

The valley was divided into eighteen districts, and from each district was selected a "local committee," these being:

LOCAL DISTRICT COMMITTEES.

Blanks were prepared and the sufferers of each district gave a statement of their loss, names and ages of their family dependant, and the value of their property remaining. These statements were then examined by the several "local district committees," information was gained in many ways, and their estimate of the loss was noted on the same blank, which was then handed over to the "Board of Inquiry," who from the data thus obtained classified the applicants for relief. These blanks show evidence of conscientious careful work on the part of some of these committees, and of haste and carelessness, on the part of others.

It was expected that these blanks would furnish an absolutely correct list of the drowned, but different members of a family, in their statements, would mention the death of the same person, as father, mother, sisters, brothers, etc., and the relationship of all not being known they were but a help.

By July 9 the "Board of Inquiry" had secured, as was thought, a full list of all claimants and a knowledge of their necessities, there having been placed in Class 1, 205 persons; in Class 2, 237; in Class 3, 372; in Class 4, 1,168, and in Class 5, 1,698, and on the earnest appeal of the Finance Committee of Johnstown it was decided by the Commission to make a cash distribution. The sum of $500,000 was placed in the hands of Judge Cummin to be distributed in accordance with the principles adopted by the Commission, but as the payment was to be on "account" it was tacitly understood that he would honor all orders issued by the "Board of Inquiry" to persons in the first five classes. The "Board of Inquiry" had divided the claimants into six classes; the first three being based on their necessities only—the most helpless being in Class 1 and the last three being based on their losses, the least necessitous being in Class 6; they recommended payment as follows: To persons in Class 1, $600; Class 2, $400; Class 3, $200; Class 4, $125; and Class 5, $80. No payment was made to persons in Class 6 in this distribution.

On July 18, the payments were commenced. Each claimant obtained from the "Board of Inquiry" an order on the Commission for the sum of money being paid to the class in which he had been placed, and presented it at the rooms of the Commission for payment. This system was utilized for obtaining from the claimants statements on the blanks prepared by the Commission, which, under oath, set forth the name, age, residence, condition of health, and income of the claimant; his assets, both in real and personal property before the flood, and his estimate of his loss; the number, ages, and sex of persons dependent upon him, the members of his family who were drowned, and the amount of assistance before received from the fund. (Objection being made by some professional and salaried men to disclosing the amount of their income, the rule as to answering concerning this was not strictly enforced.) These statements being filled out and sworn to, the Commission having employed a sufficient number of clerks and notaries public for the service, the orders as presented were cashed, unless the statements as finally made indicated that the order was larger in amount than was intended under the circumstances, when the applicant was required to return it to the "Board of Inquiry" for a final decision.

Judge Cummin being confined to the house by illness soon after this payment commenced, for some days the cashing of the orders was attended to by Mr. William R. Thompson, of Pittsburgh, with whose banking house the money for the purpose had been deposited.

There was but one Bank remaining in Johnstown; it had been flooded to a depth of some twenty feet, its contents were as might be expected from being exposed to water and mud, its floor space was limited, and its directors did not feel able to add to their more than crowded work the care of this fund. The payments therefore were made in a temporary frame building, the plan being both unsatisfactory and unsafe, but after some days an arrangement was effected with the Bank by which they agreed to accept money from the Commission on deposit, and to cash checks issued against it, the Commission agreeing to rent a suitable banking room, and to pay the salaries of a teller and a watchman, and from that time all payments from the fund of the Commission to persons in Johnstown have been made by checks on that bank, the expense of rental and clerical services having ceased on December 9th.

Under this payment known as the "first distribution," orders from the "Board of Inquiry" were cashed to the number of 3,739, amounting to $416,472, the payments being continued as rapidly as the orders were issued, but there was so much delay on the part of some of the claimants that it was necessary to fix a time, August 31, after which orders not presented would be carried forward and paid with the amount awarded at the next distribution.

A few orders were issued and payments made to persons who later were found not to have been entitled to any help; in some cases the amounts were refunded with the expense of attorney's fees only, and in one case it was not possible to recover the amount.

As in the "head money" so it was found that many persons by the payment made under the "first distribution" had received as large a proportion of the fund as was required by their circumstances, and to such no further payment was made.

"FINAL DISTRIBUTION" BY THE COMMISSION.

At a meeting of the Commission held on September 13, an appropriation of $1,600,000 was made for distribution in the Conemaugh valley, fixed proportions being designated for the several classes; this is known and referred to as the "final distribution"

To this time, and even much later, applications for assistance were received on the blanks provided by the Commission from persons who had not made statements to the local committees. Many of these were without merit, but all were considered and examined into, and many were found to be worthy, and their neglect would have been most unfortunate. One "flood widow" whose husband was a passenger of the "Day Express," made her first application for assistance as late as March 20, 1890, (and one in Lycoming county as late as April 3,) which, in view of the publicity given to the proceedings and the requirements of the Commission, is quite unaccountable. The number of statements finally on file amounted to 6,229.

The distribution of this $1,600,000, was ordered to be made in a general way on the basis recommended by the Finance Committee of Johnstown, which provided that a fixed average sum be paid to each person placed in the first three classes, and that a percentage of their losses, in varying proportions, be paid to those placed in the other three classes. This was, however, modified in that it was decided to re-arrange Class 6, leaving in it only such persons as had sustained but trifling loss, young persons without dependents whose losses could not be said to have rendered them needy, and those who, however great had been their losses, were yet possessed of such means that they could not be regarded as in need of relief, and that to this class no payment should be made.

It was estimated from the data obtained that there could be paid to persons in Class 1 an average of $1,200, in Class 2, $900, and in Class

3, $500, and to persons in Class 4 an average of about thirty per cent., and in Class 5 of about ten per cent. of their respective losses.

With this as a general basis the Johnstown "Board of Inquiry" by independent action, reviewed their work, and on October 16, submitted a schedule of amounts which they recommended to be paid to 3,415 persons. This, however, was based on an absolutely fixed percentage which did not allow for differences in circumstances within the classes, and at a meeting of the Commission on October 22, more definite instructions were given, based also on the information gained in this trial sheet, and which provided that where property losses were considered, subject to variations in each case, there could be paid to persons in the more dependent class as follows:

To those whose losses were not exceeding $500—not more than $400.

To those whose losses were over $500 and not exceeding $1,000—not more than $600.

To those whose losses were over $1,000 and not exceeding $2,000—not more than $800.

To those whose losses were over $2,000, a pro-rata proportion of the amount remaining of the appropriation made to the class, but no person to receive more than $6,000.

And to persons in the less dependent class there could be paid:

To those whose losses were not exceeding $500—not more than $200.

To those whose losses were over $500, and not exceeding $1,000—not more than $350.

To those whose losses were over $1,000, a pro-rata proportion of the amount remaining of the appropriation made to the class, but no person to receive more than $2,500.

To this time the work of the "Board of Inquiry," and of the representative of the Commission, while in accord and in the same direction, had been carried on independently of each other, but now a joint revision and again a second review were made, and each case was acted upon and a sum apportioned, based upon its special circumstances as presented by the several statements before them, supplemented by such information as could be obtained from other sources. The amount to be paid having been agreed upon, checks were mailed to the persons as rapidly as it was thought by the officers of the bank they could be paid, the payments commencing on October 9, as to widows, and on the regular list on October 23; the last regular payments were made on November 14, though as hereafter stated, checks were issued at later dates. The list being completed, another review of all the cases was made with the view of equalizing to the fullest degree possible, the amounts given to sufferers under like circumstances, and additional checks were sent to a number of persons.

Complaints and requests for further help were received from many persons which, when made in writing, were in every case considered in connection with the "Board of Inquiry," and if on further examination there appeared reasons, before unknown, for further consideration, the relief was granted. A summary of the payments is given below, the original papers, with the tabulated results, being filed with the records of the Commission for such disposal as they may decide to make of them.

"FLOOD WIDOWS."

To the women made widows by the flood, sums were first paid, which averaged to them about $1,200, each. A further payment was made to them, based on the circumstances of each, which increased this average to about $1,500. One widow declined to accept anything from the fund, and one was married before the distribution was made. To those living in foreign countries such sums were given as were thought by their countrymen who were consulted, about the equivalent, all things considered, of the amounts paid to widows who were not residents of Johnstown, and who did not, for obvious reasons, receive as much as persons in like circumstances, who, in addition to the loss of their husbands, were subjected to the discomforts and hardships of living in this for a time disorganized community. The number of widows is 124, and the amount received by them as by the records is $183,281.00, in addition to which there has been set aside for their children a sum which, when paid, will amount to $108,500.00.

"ORPHANS."

For the care of the children made orphans by the flood, it was decided to appropriate moneys to be paid at fixed intervals rather than to make payment at one time of the whole amount determined for their use. An arrangement was made with the Girard Life Insurance, Annuity and Trust Company of Philadelphia by which they agreed to allow a fair rate of interest, compounded annually, on such sum of money, as with its accretions, would permit to be paid to each orphan the sum of $50.00 annually, until they shall reach the age of sixteen years. Payments therefore of $50.00 will be made on November 1, of each year to their parents or guardians for each orphan under the age of sixteen years, through the First National Bank of Johnstown, arrangements to this effect having been completed. The amount required for this purpose was $119,616.88.

LOSSES.

The amount of loss in the Conemaugh valley, as given in the sworn statements of the claimants, reaches the sum of $9,674,105.00. The estimate, however, made by the several local district committees is about one fourth less than this, and is probably nearly correct. In addition to the above, heavy losses were sustained by corporations who did not make statements to the Commission; an effort was made by the "Board of Inquiry" of Johnstown to obtain fair estimates of such losses, and the statement below presents the result, which, while not full nor official, is the most complete available:

Making a total of . . . . . $2,378,285 00

The labor involved in deciding upon the merits of the various claims and upon the amounts to be awarded, was very great, and a fair adjustment was attended with many difficulties. While the sworn statements, as to the amount of loss and of property remaining, are a protection to the Commission, yet it was soon found that they were, in a large number of cases, absolutely unreliable, not only by reason of an attempt to magnify losses for the purpose of receiving a larger award, but mainly because of the exaggerated values which naturally are placed on ones own possessions. In most cases the amount of loss given is largely greater than that given in their first statement, and as a rule about one-third larger than the estimate as made by the local district committees. This should be considered in connection with the statement of percentages paid, (on page 46), as the latter are calculated on losses as given in the sworn statements. It was also found that in very few cases had claimants made a full return of their possessions, excepting their property directly in the Conemaugh valley. In the final decision upon any case, therefore, in addition to such information as was obtained from other sources, consideration was given to the original statement of the claimant, to the report by the local district committees and to the sworn statement as to the loss, and to all the other features of the case, as value of property remaining, health, age and dependents, as shown in the statements, while as to the general merits of the claimants, almost absolute reliance was placed on the citizens of Johnstown, who had been selected by the people themselves for the purpose of deciding upon this point. Without the "Board of Inquiry," and the local information possessed by them and the facilities which they had for obtaining a general knowledge of the many applicants, the result of the distribution would not have been satisfactory. As it is, mistakes have doubtless been made; awards were made, based on the statements and after most careful inquiry, which were larger than would have been given could the volunteer estimates of assets remaining, now freely given, have been then presented and verified; in other cases, on receiving information which was not given in the statements, amounts were given additional to the first award, and there are without doubt yet other cases which would have received further consideration had all the circumstances been properly presented. A comparison of amounts paid as to losses, therefore, must, to be of account, be coupled with the circumstances of each case in regard to all the features before mentioned. A. having sustained a loss of $500.00 may have received $250.00; B. with the same amount of loss, may have received $500.00, and C. with the same loss, by reason of special features of hardship in his case, may have received a much larger sum.

While many estimates of loss were magnified, some were under-estimated and corrections were made in the examination of the cases; that this, in some cases, was intentionally done, is evidenced by the requests of several persons for further assistance on the ground that they had "given in their loss too low, as they thought that those who had lost the least would receive the most."

FINANCIAL EXHIBIT.

Although the Commission had a treasurer, yet into his hands was given only the money which was sent to Governor Beaver and by him transferred to the Commission. The moneys were left with the other depositories of the Commission until required for distribution, when they were drawn by the Chairman and deposited at Johnstown. The accounts, as a whole, do not, therefore, appear in the books of the treasurer, but are shown in the general office of the Commission.

Moneys received were acknowledged and deposited by one department of the office, and the accompanying letters were filed in another department, and all payments were made by draft or by check. Except in the "first distribution" in the Conemaugh valley, when only the endorsement of the recipients was required on the orders and checks, and in the final distribution in which the checks themselves contained a formal receipt, all payments made by the Commission of every character, were formally receipted, which receipts are filed with the records of the Commission.

While not mentioned as a matter of special credit, yet it is gratifying to say that in the care and disbursement of this large fund, no accidents have happened, and the moneys have reached the objects intended without loss on the way. A general summary of receipts and expenditures is hereto annexed.

Circumstances prevented an earlier audit of the account of the Commission, but on June 9, a committee consisting of Hon. Robt. M. Henderson, appointed by Governor Beaver, Col. Chas. H. Banes, appointed by the Permanent Relief Committee of Philadelphia, and Mr. Geo. I. Whitney, appointed by the Pittsburgh Relief Committee, met for this purpose and their report is hereto attached.

REPORT OF THE AUDITORS.

HARRISBURG, PA., *June 23, 1890.*TO GOVERNOR JAMES A. BEAVER, Chairman:

DEAR SIR: The undersigned, having been invited to audit the accounts of the secretary of the Flood Relief Commission, would report that we visited Harrisburg for this purpose, and, having made a careful examination of the books, vouchers and other papers of the Commission, we find that the statement as above presented is correct and that there remains in the Banks, as stated, the sum of $67,205.47. Having personally verified the receipts and expenditures as a whole, we had but fairly entered into an examination of the individual checks and vouchers, many thousands in number, when it was found that more time would be required than was at our disposal, and this part of the work was referred to Mr. F. H. Hoffer a skilled accountant, whose report, given under oath, is as follows:

CARLISLE, PA., June 23, 1890.To the Members of the Auditing Committee,

GENTLEMEN: As instructed by you, I have examined and verified all the drafts, checks and vouchers of the Secretary of the Flood Relief Commission, except only those connected with the first payment for the benefit of Orphans, these having been personally examined and verified by you, and I find a voucher for every payment in accordance with the entries in the books of the Commission, and the statement of receipts and expenditures submitted to me by you is correct.

Very respectfully, yours,

(Signed) F. H. HOFFER.

STATE OF PENNSYLVANIA, }
COUNTY OF CUMBERLAND, } ss:

On June 23, 1890, personally appeared before me, a justice of the peace residing in the borough of Carlisle, county and state as above, Mr. F. H. Hoffer, who being duly sworn declares that the above statement is true and correct according to his best knowledge, skill and judgment.

(Signed) EDGAR L. SHRYOCK, J. P. [SEAL.]

In concluding this report we take pleasure in congratulating the Commission that such care and judgment have been exercised in the distribution and disbursement of this large fund—a people's free-will offering —and that the books and papers have been kept with such skill and accuracy as to render their examination and verification both easy and satisfactory.

Very respectfully,
